In the tradition of the NUA sponsored Teaching for Intelligence conferences, this conference will:

- examine the major education issues confronting teachers and administrators, students and parents, and, ultimately, all of society;
- expose participants to instructional approaches proven to increase the intellectual performance, literacy, confidence and competence of all children in their classrooms and schools;
- engage participants in a consideration of the unique issues presented by teaching in an urban environment with emphasis on the interconnectedness of culture, language, and cognition;
- provide participants with a place and atmosphere to reflect and renew;
- give participants the opportunity to dialogue with researchers, theorists and practitioners with special expertise in effecting change for the benefit of all children.

And in 2007—

Teaching for Intelligence: Believe to Achieve in

Birmingham, Alabama

April 27–29, 2007

For more information or to register, go to www.Believetoachieve.org or call LJF Educational Resources at 847 397-8527 or email to ljfedresources@aol.com.